2016 Annual Report

Upholding Our Values through Arts and Cultures

The 21st century is calling for a more equitable humane existence, greater sharing of resources, and a deeper appreciation of cultural differences. Nearly six million indigenous citizens live in the United States, whose ancestors resided for centuries in original homelands within the continental United States, Hawai‘i, and Alaska. At NACF, we work with artists and organizations to support cultural revival, foster creativity and economic opportunity, and address social progress, thereby inspiring hope and collective responsibility within Native communities and across the nation.

In this time of profound cultural upheaval, there are many people who are concerned about the direction of our nation. Native nations and other groups who have experienced injustice believe that many of the freedoms and advances that have been made historically are at risk. Native peoples and communities are motivated by values that have been passed down for generations, inspiring the wellspring of creativity and action that comes forth. There is consensus that amidst transition and upheaval in uncertain times, it is even more important to stay rooted to these values.

At NACF, the inseparable values of courage and compassion continue to shape our work. We can spread compassion and build empathy through arts and cultures, while at the same time standing strong for what we believe. It takes courage to uphold our values, and do the right thing. In Hawai‘i, we speak of the value of “pono”. Being pono means being fair and just, living in a righteous manner. There is an expectation that if there is injustice, it must be corrected or overcome.

Having compassion and building empathy through the arts helps people connect with one another and learn together. Compassion has a way of cutting through discord and chaos. It’s a very empowering and healing force that, when committed to, yields innumerable benefits. Frontiers of the mind and spirit are expanded. People are encouraged to experience and reflect resulting in new ideas and knowledge. Author, speaker, and social visionary, Duane Elgin, says “compassion will no longer be seen as a spiritual luxury for a contemplative few; rather it will be viewed as a social necessity for the entire human family.”

We believe that NACF has a responsibility to support artists and efforts that are championing Native shared values with courage and compassion. Commitment to cultural equity, and social progress in communities is paramount. We are inspired by all of your voices and stories and grateful for our partners, supporters, and friends who enable us to do our work.

Me Ke Aloha,

Lulani Arquette, Native Arts and Cultures Foundation President & CEO

Explore, watch, and connect with Native arts online!

NativeArtsandCultures.org/news www.facebook.com/nativeartsandcultures

www.youtube.com/NACFmedia
2016 Highlights

16 National Artist Fellows honored in Literature, Visual Arts, Painting, Music, Traditional Arts, and Artistic Innovation

Mentor Fellowship Program launched to support contemporary and traditional visual arts mentors and apprentices

Community Inspiration Program: Supported "Through the Repellent Fence: A Land Art Film," and youth Native film shorts on climate change with Wisdom of the Elders

Completed a social impact evaluation of our pilot Community Inspiration Projects; to be shared in 2017

Launched partnership with the National Endowment of the Arts to increase access and information flow between public art funders and tribes

8,500 social media and e-news followers receive information about grants, residencies, exhibitions and resources for artists

Presentations & advocacy at numerous events, such as at Grantmakers in the Arts, Native American and Indigenous Studies Association, Alliance of Artist Communities, etc.

NACF works with artists, communities, and organizations to support cultural revival, foster creativity and economic opportunity, and address Native arts sustainability, thereby inspiring hope and collective social responsibility among all peoples.

NACF has provided assistance to 188 Native artists and organizations in 30 states + the District of Columbia

States in which NACF Programs have assisted and/or collaborated with Native artists and arts organizations since 2010
Building Compassion
Fostering Courage
Inspiring Creativity

We can spread compassion and build empathy through arts and cultures, while at the same time standing strong for freedom and justice. In this time of profound cultural upheaval, NACF has a responsibility to support Native artists and communities whose voices are championing their values and vision.

"Vulnerability is a recurring theme of my work. To accept that reality - vulnerability of the human condition - is ultimately empowering."

Luzene Hill (Eastern Band Cherokee) of Atlanta, Georgia is an installation artist who works with paper, ink, charcoal, beeswax, and fabric, which to her represent the vulnerability of life. Through her work, she is keen to address endangered languages and violence against women, symbolically reclaiming personal and cultural sovereignty.

As a 2016 Visual Arts Fellow, Luzene will continue her research on Inka khipu knotting. Historically, the khipu was a counting method and a system of recording history, stories, poetry, and events. She uses it now as a three-dimensional language in her work to give Native women a voice.

"These projects unify and continue to help heal our community, as they are able to feel proud of what they all helped to create."

TJ Young, Sgwaayaans (Haida Nation) of Anchorage, Alaska first learned carving as a teenager, when his grandfather demonstrated the proper way to carve a halibut hook. Over time, he evolved his interest in the art form into carving larger totems for his Haida community. Sgwaayaans volunteers his carving time and has received significant recognition for mentoring apprentices.

As a 2016 Traditional Arts Fellow, TJ will lead efforts to complete two eighteen foot clan totem poles for a community house in his village.

California’s American Indian and Indigenous Film Festival (CAIFFF) is an annual program of the California Indian Culture and Sovereignty Center at California State University San Marcos, and NACF was a proud sponsor of its 2016 program.

This festival highlights the best of current films from American Indian filmmakers, producers, directors, and actors working in Indian Country. CAIFFF takes place in an area that is home to the largest number of Indian reservations in the region, and engages large groups of tribal peoples as well as surrounding communities.

"In all of my work, I am aim to make the statement that, while we are native people growing up in a not-so-native world, the process of maturing and evolving should not obstruct our search for identity but should empower it."

Aaron J. Sala (Native Hawaiian) blends modern and ancient worlds into his musical arrangements. Classically trained in piano, voice, and the art of traditional Native Hawaiian chant, he is a composer, arranger, conductor, producer, director, adjudicator, music scholar, and Hawaiian music professor.

As a 2016 Music Fellow, Aaron will complete the composition, scoring and recording for a work-in-progress stage production.
NACF support allowed Seneca choreographer Rosy Simas to travel to France, Germany, and the United Kingdom to meet with contemporary dance programmers, venues, and agents. Her long-term goal is to create new opportunities for Native American choreographers to present their work in Europe.

Simas will present her work “We Wait In The Darkness” in France in 2017. She is continually working on building understanding and opportunities through European and Turtle Island relationships in the field of dance.

“I make films to reconcile the past of my ancestors with my present-day heroes.”

Erica Tremblay (Seneca-Cayuga Nation) of New York City, New York is interested in telling stories to spark change. By artistically tackling tough topics and sensitively framing those who must fight for justice, this journalist-turned-filmmaker seeks to enlighten and educate audiences.

Her most recent short documentary, “Sexual Assault in Indian Country” examines the epidemic of non-Native perpetrators committing acts of violence against Native women and children on Indian lands. Her 2014 documentary “In The Turn”, followed Crystal, a 10-year-old transgender girl growing up in rural Canada. As a 2016 Artistic Innovation Fellow, Erica will focus her lens on the South Dakota non-profit Wica Agi’s programs to promote healthy Native masculinity.

“What I create is an attempt to be as honest as possible.”

Cannupa Hanksa Luger (Mandan, Hidatsa, Arikara, Lakota) of Glorieta, New Mexico is a contemporary multimedia sculptural artist who constantly experiments with mediums to explore ways and means to deconstruct perceptions about Native identity. He views his work as a catalyst to challenge, and hopefully change, colonial social structures, expectations, interpretations, and perceptions.

As a 2016 Visual Arts Fellow, Cannupa created the installation “Everything Anywhere,” drawing upon the intercultural manifestation of nature through matriarchal forms. Most recently and of critical importance, he has designed, created and distributed mirrored shields for the Water Protectors of Standing Rock - a tool which both physically protects its holder, and reflects back the shared humanity between protestors and police.

“What Woven: The Art of Contemporary Native Basketry” was the second exhibit of the I.M.N.D.N. Native Arts for the 21st Century Exhibition Series. Held at the Archer Gallery in Vancouver, Wash., the exhibit brought 13 contemporary Native artists to shed light on the many different facets of the age-old craft of weaving. Artists Talks, public demonstrations and basket-weaving workshops attracted regional Native and non-Native basketry artists to exchange ideas and techniques.

One of the intents of the series was to break away from the preconceived notion that romanticizes Native artists as “frozen” in historic pictures of centuries ago, and to give Native artists an opportunity to express their voice through their contemporary approach to the craft. The uniqueness of this exhibit resulted in an invitation to travel to Aurora University, in Illinois.

For more inspiration, visit www.NativeArtsandCultures.org
Board of Directors

Susan Jenkins (Choctaw) Board Chair
Sven Haakanson (Old Harbor Alutiiq), Vice-Chair
Barron M. Tenny, Board Treasurer
Adrian Wall (Jemez Pueblo)
Amy Hanaiali‘i Gilliom (Native Hawaiian, Ojibwe)
Brian Patterson (Oneida)
Cheryl Andrews-Maltais (Wampanoag Tribe of Gay Head-Aquinnah)
Dave Hatch (Siletz) (1953-2016) in memoriam
Dudley Cocke
Joy Harjo* (Mvskoke Nation)
S.R. Tommie (Seminole Tribe of Florida)
Valorie Johnson* (Seneca-Cayuga-Eastern Cherokee)

*Joined Board of Directors in 2017

Financials

For detailed Financial Reports, please visit http://www.nativeartsandcultures.org/about/reports

Revenue

Expenses

- Program Services (72.35%)
- Administration (18.07%)
- Fundraising (9.56%)
- Individual Donations (2.37%)
- Foundation - Temp. Restricted (30.45%)
- Foundation - Unrestricted (67.19%)

Support Native Arts and Cultures: www.NativeArtsandCultures.org / DONATE
In Memoriam

When we lose a generation of artists and culture bearers, we lose a generation of deep wisdom. We honor all those who have given so much to their communities, families, and fellow artists through their art, mentoring, and leadership.

Dave Hatch (Siletz)
NACF Board Member

Amelia Cornelius (Oneida)
2015 NACF Regional Artist Fellow
Traditional Arts

Teri Rofkar (Tlingit)
2013 NACF National Artist Fellow
Traditional Arts

Clarissa Rizal (Tlingit T’ak Dein Taan Raven Clan)
2015 NACF National Artist Fellow
Traditional Arts
2016 Supporters

Anishinabe/Ojibwe: Miigwech Creek: Myto Shimalgyak (Tsimshian): Doyckshin
Yaqui: Chikoe utessa Hopi: Kwakwahwa Alutiiq: Quayanna Choctaw: Yakoke
Dakota: Pidamayaye Tlingit: Gunalcheesh Haida: Haw.aa Klamath: Sepk’eec’a Pueblo of Acoma: Dawae Cherokee: Wado Cheyenne: Nea ese
Coeur d’Alene (Salish): Limlensh Tewa: Gunda Narragansett: Kutapaputush
Hawaiian: Mahalo Blackfeet: Nitsiiniyii’itaki Sgi: Cherokee Lakota: Pilamaye

Thank you

Individuals
Adrian Wall
Amy Wilson
Anonymous Donor
Anthony and Lisa Colletti
Athlyn Silver Woolley
Barbara A. Baker
Barron Tenny
Benita O. Potters
Bernice Akamine
Brenda Mallory
Brian and Barbara Carroll Robinson
Brian Patterson
Brigitte Bentela
Clark Hays
D Kalei Sombelon
Darlene Kehaulani Butts
David and Sally Benjamin
Don Charles Born
Dorothy E. Haught
Dudley D. Cocke
Elizabeth Lee Richmond-Panza
Elizabeth Madrigal
Elizabeth Steinbrueck
Elizabeth Theobald Richards
Elise Damrosch
Francene J. Blythe
Frank Lewin
Frederick A. & Sharon F. Schaefer
Gabriella Tagliacozzo
Gary L. Oxman and Kathryn Menard
Gayle D. and Thomas R. Bennett, III
Helen Glenn Burlingham
Ira Stuart Jacknis
Jan and Gordon Sandison
Janette L. Mercier
Jean M. Martin
Jeana Wooley
Jefferson Greene
John Haworth
Jonelle Seitz
Joy Harjo
Juleah Swanson
Julia R. Carleton
Kathleen Marquart
Keola Beamer

Kym Aughty
Laura Cales
Lee Ann Jasperse
Lu Lytle
Lucy Schmeider
Mario Nick Klimadels
Mary Ann Perdue
Merideth and Troy Goodman
Merriele B. and John E. Adams III
Mona Abadir
Patricia Tillmann
Philip L. and Carol Stein
Rachel Carleton
Rebecca Dobkins
Richard Wandschneider
Robert M. Cheadle
Rosalie Lowe
Rosemarie Wipfelder Kumpel
Rupert Ayton and Stephanie Sarver
Sabra Kauka
Sallejane Seiff
San San Wong
Sarah Henc
Shan Goshorn
Sherelyn Ogden
Sonya Kellihier-Combs
Steven G. Lee
Susan A. and Howard Selmer
Susan J. Morris
Susan Jenkins
Tammi Lee
Tara Lulani Arquette
Teresa Nemeth
Timothy Wilson
Tommer Peterson
Valerie Egan
Victoria L. Mason
Vince and Rhonda Herschell
Wallace G. Pellegrino
Wendy Suite
William Rhodermer
Zsuzsanna Cselenyi

Gifts Made In Memory Of
Dave Hatch
Marcelino A. Tacadena III

Gifts Made In Honor Of
Elizabeth Madrigal
Hillary Clinton
Rise Ana Robbins

Foundations
Ford Foundation
H.B. Henson Fund
Kalliopeia Foundation
Kerr/Labbe/Lowe Family Fund of The Oregon Community Foundation
Margaret A. Cargill Philanthropies
The New York Community Trust
National Philanthropic Trust
Richard C. and Susan B. Ernst Foundation
The Rose Fund
The Second Sister Foundation

Tribes
The Chickasaw Nation
Confederated Tribes of the Chehalis Reservation
Nisqually Indian Tribe Charitable Fund
Quinault Indian Nation
Seminole Tribe of Florida

Corporate
Ah-Tah-Thi-Ki Museum
AmazanSmile Foundation
Armerich Massena
Clark College
The Boeing Company Gift Matching Program
Fred Meyer/Kroger Community Rewards
Goodsearch/Goodshop
Landerhold, PS.
Seminole Hard Rock Hotel & Casino
The Standard Corporate Matching Gift Program
Umpqua Bank

Native Arts and Cultures Foundation | 480 E. Evergreen Blvd. Suite 102, Vancouver WA 98660 www.nativeartsandcultures.org