

NATIVE ARTS & CULTURES FOUNDATION

LIFT - Early Career Support for Native Artists

Program Eligibility, Application Process, Criteria, and FAQ

DEADLINE: A call for submissions for the Native Arts and Cultures Foundation's (NACF) LIFT program is now open until March 16, 2022, at 5:00 p.m. Pacific time. Notifications will be sent in July 2022.

CAREFULLY REVIEW the information on this page and return to it as needed while completing your application. We wish you the best with your application. Thank you for your time and energy to submit. We encourage artists who are shaping their practices and for whom the award may serve as a launching point in their career to apply.

ABOUT THE LIFT PROGRAM:

The LIFT – Early Career Support for Native Artists program will provide critical support to early career Native artists with one-year awards to develop and realize new projects. The program encourages artists to uplift communities, advance positive social change, point courageously toward environmental sustainability, and foster communal meaning making. The program will consist of a suite of activities that includes grantmaking, artist professional development, and artist convening. The primary objectives of this opportunity are to support artists who are developing their voices and for whom the award may serve as a launching point in their career.

Programming Services:

- Grantmaking: One-year awards of $10,000.
- Professional development: Artist awardees will participate in trainings facilitated by NACF and its partner organizations that are designed to provide education around project management, small business development, career advancement, and artistic development.
- Convening: Current recipient artists will gather to share best practices and develop relationships.

- Culturally Appropriate Evaluation: Support from NACF to develop project deliverables, outcomes and internal/external NACF program reports.
- Communications and marketing support.
- In response to a pandemic environment, some of these services will be offered in virtual environments, as needed or possible.

APPLICANT ELIGIBILITY:

To be eligible for the LIFT program, applicants must:

- Be 18 years or older;
- Currently reside in the United States;
- Be an enrolled member or citizen of a federally-recognized or state-recognized American Indian tribe or Alaska Native corporation, or of Native Hawaiian ancestry. Applicants will be asked to provide documentation of their Native citizenship or ancestry.
- Be an individual practicing artist working in the disciplines of dance/choreography, fiction/poetry writing, film/video, multi-disciplinary arts, music, performance art, theater and screenplay writing, traditional arts or 2D + 3D visual arts.
- Be early in their artistic career with ten years or less experience. Early career may be defined as an artist who is 18-30 years old, or who is more than 30 years old, but who started their arts career later in life.
- Not have received a singular award of $10,000 or more in their artistic career;
- NOT BE enrolled in a university or higher-education institution during the 12-month award period.
- Propose a new project that can be developed and presented within one year of the award, or prior to July 31, 2023.

APPLICATION OVERVIEW:

Please allow for plenty of time to complete the application.

The LIFT application includes six sections:

1. Eligibility: You will answer a list of questions to determine your eligibility for the LIFT program before proceeding to the full application.

2. Applicant Contact Information: If eligible, you will be asked to provide your best contact information (Address, Email, Phone).
3. Survey Questions: The information collected in this section is for demographic purposes and has no bearing on individual applications. All survey answers are maintained in strict confidence. The demographic information compiled from the survey will help inform NACF to advocate more effectively for Native artists.
4. Project Narrative: In this section, you will be asked to provide a written description of your proposed project, which includes: (1) short project description, (2) background or context for the project, (3) project themes, (4) your previous work, (5) plans for community engagement or public presentation of the project; (6) Twelve-month timeline for the project (to be completed by June 30, 2022).
5. Project Budget: In this section, you will complete a budget form showing how you will allocate the $10,000 award funds towards your proposed project. Note that $3,000 of the award funds must be allocated directly to the artist, for their benefit and wellbeing.
6. Work Samples and Supporting Materials: In this section, you will provide the following: (1) artist work samples, (2) artist's resume or CV, (3) artist website (if available), (4) one letter of recommendation, and (5) documentation of Native citizenship or ancestry.

SELECTION PROCESS AND REVIEW CRITERIA:

NACF staff will review each application for eligibility criteria, adequacy of work samples, and application completeness, and then invite art peers and professionals in relevant art fields to review and make recommendations for the NACF Board of Director's approval. Up to twenty artists will be selected to receive support. Notifications will be sent via email in late July 2022.

Panelists will review applications using the following criteria:

Project Explorations

Applicants will describe the work's style, format, themes, and process of creation. Projects must involve the development of new work. Public presentation of the work is required and depending on the pandemic environment, virtual presentation will be considered. Applicants will describe the issue(s) to be addressed, its significance to the community or communities, and the impact the project will have in addressing the issue(s).

Artistic Experience

Artistic experience is demonstrated through technical skills, originality, innovation, inspiration, and the distinctive niche of the artist(s), as indicated by work samples; training, apprenticeships, and/or education.

Financial Capacity

Financial capacity is demonstrated by the viability of the project budget. If the project budget is more than the maximum $10,000 grant amount, artists must demonstrate other support for the project (for example: other grants, in-kind contributions, earned income etc.). Note that at least $3,000 of the $10,000 must go the artist as a stipend. Remaining funds may be spent on production, presentation, engagement, supplies, etc.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS:

Can a Native artist from outside the US apply?

Artists must be an enrolled member or citizen of a federally-recognized or state-recognized American Indian tribe or Alaska Native corporation, or of Native Hawaiian ancestry. Applicants will be asked to provide documentation of their Native citizenship or ancestry.

Artists must also demonstrate US residency. Artists from US territories are not eligible to apply.

Can I submit more than one application?

NACF will only accept only one submission per applicant.

Can I apply if I have already received a NACF award in previous years?

All previous awardees who have received support from NACF prior to 2020 are eligible to apply. Recipients of the 2020 Native Arts Emergency Support Project (pandemic relief) are also eligible to apply. However, please note that artists who received a single award of $10,000 or more at any point in their artistic career, from NACF or other funders, are not eligible to apply.

Can I apply if I am currently a student and/or enrolled in an education program?

You are not eligible to apply if you are currently enrolled or plan to be enrolled during the grant period.

What if I accidentally submitted my application before it was completed?

If you submitted your form in error, please email Laura (Cales) Matalka at laura@nativeartsandcultures.org. You may edit your submission prior to the deadline.

Will I receive feedback about my application?

Due to the large number of applications we expect to receive, we will not be able to provide individual feedback.
